

Skylar Capital's Bill Perkins Steps Up For Save the Children

Perkins Joins Fellow Hedge Fund Managers and Investors in Winner-Takes All Charity Poker Tournament hosted by Bloomberg TV's Trish Regan

HOUSTON – October 21, 2013 – Skylar Capital Management's energy hedge fund manager Bill Perkins will appear this Wednesday October 23 at 9:00 PM ET/6:00 PM PT and Thursday October 24 at 12:00 AM ET/9:00 PM PT on Bloomberg TV's charity tournament "Poker Night On Wall Street" hosted by Trish Regan at the Borgata in Atlantic City.

Mr. Perkins participated in support of Save the Children, the leading independent charitable organization creating lasting change in the lives of children in need in the United States and around the world through programs that aim to provide a healthy start, the opportunity to learn and protection from harm. The 'Winner-Takes All' competition included other prominent investors and hedge fund managers David Einhorn of Greenlight Capital, Jim Chanos of Kynikos Associates, Steve Kuhn of Pine River Investments, John Rogers of Ariel Investments, and Mario Gabelli of Gabelli Asset Management.

"I continue to be inspired by the impact of Save the Children," said Bill Perkins. "With nearly 1 in 4 American kids living in poverty, 16 million young people who understand all too well what it means to go without, Save the Children continues to provide health, education, protection and disaster relief programs for kids, giving them what they need to grow up happy and healthy."

"Being part of Bloomberg TV's 'Poker Night on Wall Street' was incredible, and I was honored to be part of an exceptional group of financial leaders, philanthropists and poker aficionados," said Bill Perkins. "While we competed with great passion, we all stand united in our desire to raise funds and visibility for important charities that can transform lives and make a difference for people in need."

About Skylar Capital Management, LLC

Skylar Capital Management is a Houston-based firm investing in energy with an emphasis on North American natural gas. The founder, William O. Perkins III, has over 20 years of experience in trading and risk management. He launched Skylar after a successful 10-year tenure as a senior portfolio manager at Centaurus Energy, a multi-billion dollar hedge fund. Skylar Capital Management employs a fundamental, discretionary and analytical approach to trading natural gas futures and options. The firm combines deep fundamental analysis of supply and demand metrics with proprietary quantitative analysis to determine key upcoming drivers of pricing. Qualitative research is used to compare Skylar's outlook to market consensus and determine the potential for a significant exploitable price shift. These may be expressed through directional or relative value strategies. Risk allocations are determined by a position's individual risk/return profile as well as its impact on the portfolio. The firm uses a dynamic risk management process that rebalances based on changes in risk and return expectations.
